OCAL DECISION MAKING

COMMUNITIES

Have little say in how government delivers services

see change

Have no control over funding

Leadership and governance is not recognised knowledge and expertise

GOVERNMENT

Have all the information

Have all the Make all the funds decisions

Consult but don't listen or understand

Are reluctant to change

Communities choose to be involved

Along the way, communities will...

- share knowledge and expertise
- volunteer to be part of the process
- · commit to the journey
- strengthen existing leadership and governance
- be accountable for decision making
- be honest, open and respectful

Stage 1

Advisory

Aboriginal communities and government begin to work together

Stage 2

Planning

Aboriginal communities gain more control of what services are delivered and how

Stage 3

Implementation

Aboriginal communities are responsible for funding and delivering services

Along the way, Government will...

Initial implementation in three areas

- share information and negotiate in good faith
- commit to the process
- be in it for the long haul
- · build skills in listening, negotiating and cultural understanding
- be accountable and do what it promises
- be honest, open and respectful

Communities have a real say

Better services targetted to local needs

Government invests in community governance and leadership

Improved socio-economic outcomes

Healing and mutual respect are achieved